

Clinical & Business Intelligence Network (CBIN)

Fast Track the Clinical Business Intelligence Journey

In an environment of increased competition and declining revenues, effective and efficient information sharing processes are vital. The cost and complexity of creating such a robust clinical business intelligence environment, however, is significant. While there are no short cuts, it is possible to learn from other healthcare organizations that are further along the CBI journey and to leverage their experience to build meaningful information flow faster, with less expense and less wasted experience.

“By collaborating in this work I believe our organization will easily recoup our money several times over!” –network CIO

Members drive the agenda. In 2013 the priorities were to build strategy development and road map guides. In 2014, the focus is on data governance techniques and staff skills development. All events are focused on accelerating the clinical business intelligence journey of our members.
